

Facts, Fiction, Fashions and Features of Interest to Women

Excellent Advice

By DOROTHY DIX
Copyright, 1920.
Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

Choosing a Wife

A young man asks me to give him a few tips on how to select a wife. The best advice that I can offer any youth contemplating matrimony is to go off some quiet spot and have a heart-to-heart session with himself, and honestly try to find out what manner of man he really is, and what he aspires to be and to do in the world.

With this data in hand it is easy enough to pick out the right girl instead of one who will keep a man wondering to his dying day what she is up to. The girl who is a killer when he led the lady he did to the altar.

"Know thyself" is never such a good slogan as when a man is choosing a wife. The girl who is the trouble with most unhappy marriages is merely that they are mist marriages. The wife who drives one man to drink would have little chance of being a good wife to another. She who is a miser of carnal bliss. She who raps the nerves of one husband at every turn would make a soothing and congenial companion to another. And these unbecoming marriages are more the men's fault than the women's, for men do the picking and choosing, and it is their poor judgment, and lack of knowledge of what they need, and what will suit them in the wife line that keeps Reno on the map, and the divorce court busy.

Therefore, son, when you think about marriage, don't waste any time worrying over the girl. Worry over yourself a little. Consider your own character, disposition, finances, ambitions and prospects, and let this knowledge be a lamp to your feet when you go a-wooing.

Suppose, for instance, you are of a nervous, irritable disposition, with a temper that is liable to flare up at any moment. Can't you see that matrimony for you will be nothing but a dark and bloody battlefield if you marry some beautiful, slender creature with thin lips and quivering nostrils and lovely auburn hair? Whereas it will be one grand sweet song if you have gumption enough to pick out for a wife some plump, placid maiden with oolike eyes and a nice, fat laugh.

Woman for woman, the two girls may be equally models of all the virtues, but the high strung one will keep you always up to concert pitch, while the good nature of the other will polio your sore nerves and soothe them, and her optimism will be a perpetual tonic to you. With one you will live scrappily. With the other happily, for there is not room for but one set of nerves, and one case of dyspepsia in any human.

Suppose when you look into your own soul you admit to yourself that while you are not in the least vain or egotistic, still you can not deny that you are a man of great intellect, and of a judgment as profound that it is entitled to respect on every occasion.

Will you find happiness if you marry some opinionated young person who is firmly convinced that she is the latest incarnation of Mrs. Solomon, and who considers that it is her place in the home to rule the roost, and tell her husband just where he gets off—and stays off? I trow not.

You know plenty of men who have the feet on the door mat, and for they dare to enter their own domicile, and who jump every time their wives speak to them. Can you see yourself qualifying in the

CHILDREN'S SUNRISE STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACKO'S JUMPING.

By HOWARD H. GARRETT
Copyright, 1920.
Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

Once upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily Longears, the funny bunny rabbit gentleman, was out walking with Jacko Kinkytall, the monkey boy, the two friends came to a green grove in the woods where some of the animal girls were playing. Oh, just a moment, if you please. The animal girls, among whom were Jennie Chipmunk and Susie Littlebell, were not exactly playing—they were, rather, sitting around on stumps and logs.

"What's the matter, girls?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he and Jacko reached the green grove. "Are you tired of having fun?"

"Oh, no," answered Lulu Wibblewobble, the duck girl. "But we have been jumping our wild grape vines until we are tired."

"Tired?" laughed Uncle Wiggily, so that his pink nose twinkled like a chunk of strawberry ice cream. "I didn't believe you ever got tired, any more than I get tired of looking for adventures."

"Well, we're not exactly tired," quacked Alice, who was a duck sister of Lulu. "Only we would like to know some new ways of jumping rope. We are tired of the old ways and the old verses we say as we jump."

"Hum!" spoke Uncle Wiggily, something like a cornstarch pudding. "I wonder if I know any new ways of jumping rope?"

"Oh, you must know some new ways!" cried Jennie Chipmunk. "You know so much, Uncle Wiggily, and you have so many things happen you, I'm sure you can tell us a new way to have fun with our grapevine ropes."

"Well, I'll try," said the bunny gentleman. "Do you know how to jump salt?" he asked, seasonable like.

"Oh, we learned that first of all!" cried the animal girls in a chorus.

"How about pepper?" asked Uncle Wiggily, spicily.

"We learned that, second of all the jumps," said Beekie Stubbalt, the little girl bear.

"Dear me!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, sort of rubbing his pink nose with his floppy ear. "I don't seem to be able to teach you anything about jumping grapevine ropes. I'm too old-fashioned, I guess; eh, Jacko?" he asked the monkey boy.

"Oh, I don't know," slowly chattered Jacko. "I guess maybe that is, if the girls wouldn't mind—and think me a sissy, I could show them some new kind and styles of jumps for ropes."

"Oh, please do!" quacked Lulu, and she won't think you're a bit of a sissy."

"Go ahead, Jacko," advised Uncle Wiggily. "Help the girls!"

So Jacko took one of the short grapevine ropes in his paws, and he began a new kind of jump, partly on one leg and partly on the other. And, as he jumped, he sang a little verse like this:

Lady, lady, touch the ground.
Lady, lady, show your shoe.
Lady, lady, I'm after you!"

And as Jacko sang the little verse he did just what the words called for. He turned around and he stuck out his paw, only it didn't have any shoe on for he was barefooted that day. And then he stopped and touched the ground.

And when he sang:

"Lady, lady, I'm after you!" then Jacko would run around and chase the girl animals, and they screamed as loud as anything and scattered. But it was lots of fun and they all wanted to jump as Jacko had done. So they all ran around and again, doing such funny little jiggy steps and dances in the jumping that even Uncle Wiggily laughed.

"Where do you learn such rope jumping, Jacko?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"Oh, down in Coconut Grove," answered Jacko. "And there is another funny little step, too, he added. "You put an orange on your head and then you—"

But Jacko suddenly stopped chattering and cried:

"Skeekicks! Skeekicks! I'm after you!"

With that he gave a jump toward a bush just behind Uncle Wiggily, and, as the monkey boy reached the bush, out from under it ran the bad-old Skeekicks, crying:

"Oh! Oh! Oh! Don't jump on me, I'll be good!"

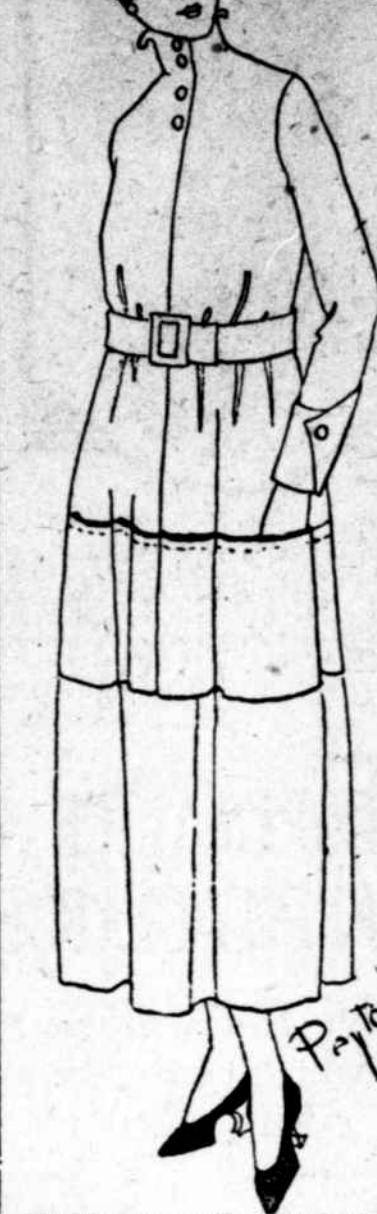

"I saw the bad old Skeek just as I was going to do a new jump," exclaimed Jacko. "So I thought I'd scare him by making believe jump on him."

"I'm glad you did," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "He must have sneaked along through the woods after me. Thank you, Jacko. You saved my house."

Then the monkey boy showed the animal girls some more "Lady, lady" rope jumps and everybody was happy. And if the plover doesn't try to jump out of the oven before the cake, and tickle the leg of the gas stove, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jennie's brush.

Combines Practical With the Artistic

New Members Join Salesman Club And Plunge in Work for $6,000 Award; Extra Prizes of $500 Come June 17

Fashion is much concerned this year with combining the practical with the artistic, and illustrated is one excellent example of the way she contrives to bring this about. It is a coat dress of prune-colored duvetyne, adopted from one in Julia Marlowe's private wardrobe. The coat about the waist fits smoothly with the slight fullness there is at the waist gathered into a belt, and the front fastened straight up to the chin.

The skirt is similarly gathered to the belt and banded half way down with a simulated hem that is machine-stitched after the manner of black patent kid has been inserted as a heading. The skirt is comparatively full, the sleeves are long and finished with any variety of the new "nap" cuffs.

Continued from page one.

early weeks of the campaign count for many more credits than they will later along. In other words, the present is the biggest and best subscription opportunity that will be presented.

Besides there are two Extra Cash Prizes—$300 to be awarded to the member doing the best work up to and including June 17, and $500 to the member who turns in the second largest number of subscription credits during this same period.

Obtain Subscriptions Anywhere.

It does not make any difference in what part of the campaign territory you live, you have the same chance of winning the biggest and best prize as anyone else. There are seven grand awards—$6,000 home, or $6,000 in cash, $3,555 Standard Eight, $3,250 Jordan, $2,125 Sayers, $1,700 Dixie Flyer, $1,695 Allen, $1,275 Maxwell. These seven awards will be awarded to the members with the highest total of subscription credits, irrespective as to where they may reside, just so they live within the campaign territory, comprising Washington, District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia.

The seven grand prizes are not the only awards. The Herald is offering as there are eight $100 cash awards for Salesman Club workers, and, of course, a cash commission of 10 per cent. every active nonprize-winning member.

Be a Starter Today.

If you have been thinking of sending in your entry you should not delay longer. While there is a representative list of men and women registered as members of The Herald Salesman Club, there is plenty of room for new entrants.

No member as yet shows a credit standing but what some ambitious new member can easily obtain enough subscriptions in an hour or two of their spare time to overtake the leaders and gain a high position in the race.

Why not send in your entry today, join The Herald Salesman Club. Fit your energies against representative men and women in Washington and surrounding territory.

Unusual awards are offered for spare time. Get busy. Drop into the club headquarters and obtain receipt books and information as to how to go about gaining a start toward the winning of the first grand award—the $6,000 home (or, if preferred, $6,000 in cash) or if you want a handsome latest model 1920 motor car The Herald offers six of them.

If you cannot come in person, telephone Main 3360. The Salesman Club office is located at 123 Eleventh street northwest, and

Kann Sons Company
THE BUSY CORNER PENN. AVENUE AT 8TH STREET

Open 9:15 A. M. Close 6:00 P. M.

Thousands of These Two Styles of Car Check Holders

On Sale in Our Toy Store—Fourth Floor, Today.

—You know what a bother it is to fumble around in your pocket, or pocketbook for one of these evasive little car checks; you will appreciate the convenience with one or the other of these styles of holders.

—The Flat Car Check Holder, with the two places for car checks, will hold 10 checks or tokens. Priced at 10c

—The Round Holders, which will hold sixteen checks are here today at each 10c

Kann's—Fourth Floor.

Helene's Married Life

By MAY CHRISTIE
Copyright, 1920.
McClure Syndicate.

CXIV—BLAME.

Alice turned round and faced me squarely, when I told her Tony was a rascal.

"If the check was forged, why weren't the police called in?" she demanded. That seemed to her a conclusive argument.

"Jim's father believed Jim guilty. He didn't want an open scandal. He had no intentions, for the sake of the family honor, or prosecuting," I spoke decidedly.

Alice looked annoyed.

"You quick enough, if he had thought that he was the guilty party?"

"No doubt he would!" I answered, calmly. "Tony has that possibility to face."

Alice paled a little. She seemed frightened.

"Are you going to go and tell?"

"I've already told my husband," I said stiffly. "It remains to be seen what he will do."

The blood flowed back to Alice's cheeks. Her eyes flung angry sparks.

"I don't think you've shown up

What Causes Wrinkles? What's The Remedy?

Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagging of skin. Premature aging, malnutrition, etc., cause the skin to lose its youthful plumpness and firmness. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; doesn't fit tightly and snugly as it used to—wrinkles or sags.

It must be plain that to tighten the skin, skin it at face perfectly in every place, will effectively remove the wrinkles and bagginess. This is easily and handsomely accomplished by using an ounce of pure powdered salicylic acid in a half pint of water and using the solution as a face wash. The skin immediately tightens, becomes firm and fresh as in youth. Every wrinkle and sag are affected at once.—Adv.

Monday: A Theory.

At Last, Relief From Rheumatism

Now Is An Excellent Time to Get Rid of Its Tortures.

Victims of Rheumatism should take advantage of the warm season which is so favorable to the proper treatment for this painful ailment. Rheumatism is more than a mere local disorder confined to the locality of the painful parts. It cannot be rubbed away, because it is a deep-seated disease that has its source in the blood supply. The tiny pain demons, the millions of little disease germs that cause the disease must be reached and eliminated from the blood before real relief can be had.

S. S. S. has been successfully used for Rheumatism for more than fifty years. It is the most thorough and reliable, blood remedy because it reaches out and eliminates all disease germs which infest the blood. Go to your drugstore and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and begin to take a rational, sensible treatment for Rheumatism that will show results. For free expert medical advice regarding your own Rheumatism, write to Chief Medical Adviser, G. A. Swift, Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

Is This Your Type?

By MARIE LA ROQUE
Copyright, 1920.
McClure Syndicate.

The Greek Ideal.

Down through the ages goes the influence of the ancient Greek ideas of beauty and to this day most of us have a notion that the perfectly beautiful type of face is the Grecian type. By this we mean the type of face portrayed in Grecian art—the straight, firm nose, low broad forehead, full, finely chiseled lips, large full eyes—a combination of regular features that was probably no more often found perfectly presented in the same face among the Greeks than it is among the present-day Europeans or Americans, for that matter.

There is really no very good reason why we should accept this standard of perfect beauty so unquestionably. Nine individuals out of ten find other types more fascinating—these sincerely admire features cast in another mould more than those made famous by Praxiteles, the greatest of Greek sculptors. But there is something still about this pure Grecian type that makes us willing to keep it on a pedestal above the ideals of all other times and all other places.

Of the Grecian face immortalized by the great Greek sculptors one art critic says: "The brows are low and straight, and are framed by bands of wavy hair; the nose is admirable in form and rather large; the lips are full and turned and often slightly parted; the chin is delicately rounded; and, deeply set under arching brows, the large, luminous eyes look coldly forth from the divine immobile countenance."

Heroines in fiction are repeatedly described as possessing Grecian features. Of Haydee in "Monte Christo," Dumas says: "The beauty of countenance was peculiarly and purely Grecian; there were the large, dark, melting eyes, straight nose and coral lips and pearls teeth that belonged to her race and country." And of Mercedes in the same book he says: "Lovely as the Greeks of Cyprus or Chios Mercedes boasted the same bright flashing eyes of jet, and ripe, round coral lips."

Elizabeth Patterson, who married

Is This Your Type?

The Classic Greek Type as Alma Tadema Depicts It.

Daily Horoscope

Venus rules strongly for good during the middle hours of this day, according to astrology. Around sundown Neptune and Jupiter are strongly adverse.

It is a day most auspicious for the activities of women. They should find organization work especially easy during this conjunction of the planets.

Love affairs are well influenced, so far as the meeting and the association of men and women are concerned. The wooer of the evening, however, is likely not to be successful in financial matters.

Public gatherings of every sort are subject to favorable influences. Churches should benefit under this sway.

Dress will be much discussed and reductions in the price of clothing will be widespread, although there is little hope that the cost of living will greatly diminish within the year.

It is a promising day for theaters and should be especially good for actresses, for whom the stars seem to offer unusual chances to play in Europe.

Neptune is read as forecasting vision that will enable men of affairs to protect themselves against financial embarrassment. Foreign travel will greatly improve during the coming months and great enterprises will prosper.

There is a sinister sign that is read as presaging plots and troubles in which an Oriental nation is concerned. Treachery on the part of certain persons in the United States appears to be foreseen.

Neptune gives warning of secret enemies who will make plans on an enormous scale and involve prominent Americans.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a successful and prosperous year. Those born after midday should be very conservative in business ventures.

Children born on this day are likely to be affectionate and well-behaved. They may be high-strung and nervous, but exceedingly keen in intellect.

LOUISIANA SUFFRAGE MEASURE FAVORED

Baton Rouge, La., June 4.—The Federal suffrage ratification resolution was today reported favorably by the Senate committee, and probably will be voted on early next week.

Both houses adjourned until 8 o'clock Monday night.

Col. James M. Thomson, publisher of the New Orleans Item, and son-in-law of former Speaker of the National House Champ Clark, has been named alternate to Gov. John M. Parker, and will attend the San Francisco convention as a delegate-at-large holding Gov. Parker's proxy.

Head Nurse says:

CONTROL YOUR MOODS.

Bad digestion and ill temper seem to be so frequently found in the same individual that we have fallen into the habit of blaming the temper on the digestion. Physicians are beginning to realize that worry and anxiety cause a condition of mental depression that will invariably react on the digestion.

Sometimes it is a personal antagonism. Some individual eats at the table with you that so irritates you that the proper digestive juices are not secreted and indigestion results. Every individual owes it to himself and to his community to keep his digestion in order. Make your plan to keep your mind serene so that you will not get the wrong psychic reaction on your gastric juices.

If you are annoyed or irritated at meal time do not eat—wait until you "cool off." If business worries are carried to the home table trouble is bound to occur. You must actually enjoy your meal if you are going to get full benefit from your food.

This has actually been tested by research work on animals. The secretion known as "psychic secretion" occurs in the stomach about fifteen seconds after food has been taken into the mouth. It is clear that we deal with a more complicated process than the simple reflex caused by the food itself and that the secretion discharge into the stomach occurs as the result of nervous processes connected with the "enjoyment" of food.

(Copyright, 1920, by The M-C Syndicate.)

St. John's Exams Open Today.

Scholarship examinations for St. John's College will be held at the school, 1235 Vermont avenue northwest, at 9 o'clock this morning. Applications to take the examination may be made to Brother D. Edwards, president of the institution, up until examination time.

The awarding of the scholarships is a part of the college's free educational program.

The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says the thing to do is to eliminate the middleman entirely and buy direct from the jobber.

Calotabs

The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nauseous, safe and sure. Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.